

Platform for Partnerships (PfP)

Wednesday, 22 January 2020

(17h00 – 19h00)

Draft Outline and Preliminary Agenda

The GFMD Platform for Partnerships (PfP) was established in 2010 as a mechanism to foster the exchange of practices, policies and lessons learned between and within Member States, working on their own or in concert with other migration and development stakeholders.

Organized every year during the Summit Meeting, the special session on the PfP provides governments and non-state partners (international organizations, civil society and the private sector) a dedicated space for showcasing state-of-the-art initiatives on migration and development, and for forging partnerships. Comprised of presentations with interactive Q&A, the PfP session also offers a space for policymakers to adopt and foster new programs and partnerships, and draw from the policy recommendations of the different actors working in the field of migration and development.

To date, the special sessions on the PfP in the annual GFMD Summit Meetings have showcased around 35 migration and development policies and practices.

Methodology: There will be three rounds of 30-minute presentations, each with two focus project / policy initiatives. Each round of presentations will begin with an elevator pitch by the Government proponents, followed by the presentation by the expert agencies. After the presentations, the floor will be opened for limited Q & A (questions and answers). Participants may submit written comments or questions, with their business cards to facilitate immediate follow up by the presenters.

<sup>1</sup> An elevator pitch is a brief, persuasive speech that is intended to spark interest in a project, idea, or product – or in oneself. A good elevator pitch should last no longer than a short elevator ride of 20 to 30 seconds, hence the name. It should be interesting, memorable, and succinct. For the purpose of the PfP session, the main objective of the elevator pitch approach is to highlight the one main takeaway/insight that the audience should remember from the presentation.
